T H U R S D A Y, FEBRUARY 3, 1863.

Annapolis, February 3.

From the (Baltimore) ANTI-DEMOCRAT.

BY REQUEST.

The substance of the verbal address of the governor to the members of the legislature of Maryland, January 10th, 1863.

TWO letters addressed to the legislature of Maryland on the 10th of January last, the one by the governor and the other by his council in reply, and several mutilated extracts from the proceedings of the assembly, have been hurried into the common routine of publication. The agent who transmitted them to the press, has not noticed a subtle and gross misstatement of the governor's words, nor the principal resolution which passed the senate and was rejected by the delegates, by the yeas and nays, and to which what have been published were only appendages. The motives for these misstatements are perhaps immaterial, but the effect is unfavourable to truth.

A correct disclosure of the conduct of public functionaries is due to their constituents, and when a great constitutional question becomes involved, which can neither be explained, modified or decided, but after an appeal to the people, it would be criminal to withhold any information that may enable them to repress usurpation or correct abuses.

Until such a representation can be prepared, the facts which compelled a resort to a verbal address to the legislature ought to be made known: They were thus disclosed by the governor. That his letter already published was written early on Monday morning as soon as he was apprised of the transactions of the preceding Saturday evening; it was immediately read to the council by himself and transmitted by the clerk to the assembly: The members of the council disappearing except one or two, he remarked that he did not expect they would do any business that day and that he should retire home: This was done under the entire persuasion that if they should reply to his letter, they could not fail to observe a conduct equally frank in communicating its contents to him; but notwithstanding the five members all concurred in, and forwarded to the legislature soon after his departure, the reply that has been published, the governor had not the slightest intimation of the transaction until late in the evening, when he attended expecting to sign the laws.

Duty to himself and his constituents forbade an acquiescence under a statement calculated in his judgment to make erroneous impressions on the public mind; although on the facts disclosed in those letters, the question might perhaps be safely rested; and it might be asked under what part of a resolution worded—That the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the council, he is hereby authorized and requested to appoint, that the council without the knowledge and approbation of the governor, and in his absence, could make the appointment themselves? For admitting that the word advice, as they seem to imply, contrary to the common understanding of mankind, and contrary to the universal and received constitutional construction of the United States, is equivalent to a mandate, which the governor was not at liberty to disobey; yet in this instance he has not been even the degraded and mechanical instrument to execute their orders: He had in fact no agency whatever in an appointment, for the merits and consequences of which he was thus apparently responsible.

Thus imbrued, and by no means disposed to sustain so humiliating and dangerous a position for the ensuing twelve months; he found the usual and more eligible mode of written communication no longer practicable; as the legislature were then ready to rise, and it was already too dark to write; he was forced to write two lines, stating, that previous to the signature of the laws he was anxious to address a few verbal observations to the members of both houses collectively.

The two houses having assented to this request, he started to them what will hereafter be fully detailed to the public with the proper references, but what can now be only briefly recapitulated, substantially was to the following effect:

That with regard to the appointments under the resolution which he had on Saturday morning proposed in council, a selection of characters, above all suspicion of private interest, party prejudice, or predetermined opinion; whose high reputation and known attachment to the state, would secure the public confidence, and whose legal knowledge would protect the public interests; he named the three gentlemen mentioned in his letter published, but who made other names that would be acceptable to him, requesting a free communication of opinion on the part of the council, but when members of assembly were proposed, he had observed that the warm recollections during two successive sessions, had probably compelled the council to take certain and determined ground, from which it was not probable they could now be induced to recede; that with respect to the gentlemen whose names had been used, he could feel no personal motive, but what was entirely favourable to them—expressed his sense of their merits, and his unwillingness to hazard what might wound their feelings; but having been considered as the prominent characters, who had successfully opposed the governor's applications, and offers of compromise on the part of the canal company; their appointment on this occasion might possibly be attributed to party, and perhaps to unworthy motives in the executive; and would probably induce the company through despair, to persevere in an offer of their whole interest to Pennsylvania (a copy of which he had sent) and from which he apprehended pernicious consequences to this state; that although he could make appointments without their advice and consent, yet in his opinion the council could make none without his concurrence; they were imposed initially to check such appointments, and that the responsibility must rest on the party proposing a proper appointment, as was the case in the case of the canal and the United States, where the governor acted by the advice and consent of others—for his part he could not then consent to appoint both the members of assembly insisted on—the council refused, but it was by no means true that the governor desired a meeting in the evening—this was proposed by a member who said that he expected to leave town next morning, and the governor observed that if he could converse with certain members and satisfy his mind, he would meet them, but as he could only do this partially, he did not attend—and certainly that the council should proceed to appoint under a resolution so worded, and to notify those appointed, without the ceremony of sending the door-keeper to inform the governor; was equally inconsistent with his ideas of their powers, and the common respect due to his official situation.

In fact the company and the canal itself had become secondary objects with him from the time Pennsylvania had questioned the right of Maryland to grant the half-toll; although the resolution has been cautiously worded to exclude this question from discussion, yet it might be incidentally decided, and a law had been actually proposed to the legislature involving this effect; it was therefore by no means so easy with the governor to select at once, characters to whose talents and address, such complicated and delicate interests could with safety be confided.

That as to the general powers of the governor and council, although he had made every sacrifice of opinion during the last year that a sense of absolute duty would permit; yet he had early apprised the council of his construction of the constitution; that the governor by its express words is authorized to make every appointment but one, and to do every executive act but two, either by and with the advice and consent of council, or by his sole authority: That for this purpose and with this view the council were declared expressly by the constitution, to be a council to the governor—not a council to the state of Maryland. That instead of this they had completely inverted the order, the expression and the sense of the constitution. They had at first considered him only as a governor appendant to the council—the mere instrument through which their orders were to be executed; that they had next proceeded to act in every instance where the constitution required the concurrence of the governor and council without regarding his consent as necessary: And finally by issuing their orders through their clerk to act even without his knowledge; that the constitution had authorized them expressly to appoint one officer and to do two acts as a council without the concurrence of the governor. But that these provisions must have been truly absurd and ridiculous; if the makers had ever contemplated that they were to appoint every officer of the state; and perform the duties of the executive, of their own mere motion, by their own authority, without consulting with and without the consent, or even knowledge of the governor. That every different article and part of the constitution, was perfectly reconcilable and consistent, under the interpretation of the governor, but the whole would remain a mass of absurdity and a tissue of contradictions under that of the council. That the technical terms by and with the advice and consent of council, had been transferred into different constitutions of these states, from the words of the old royal and proprietary commissions to the governor of the colonies; that their meaning had been established from their earliest settlement by uniform usage, and had been practised under without a doubt, for many years after the revolution, in the sense given to them by the governor, by the different states of the union: That they had been lately adopted into the constitution of the United States, where their meaning had been considered both in theory and practice as unequivocal, by the united opinion and admission of all the American union; that the president in making appointments and treaties was to act by and with the advice and consent of the senate; yet no one solitary suggestion amidst the wilderness of modern conjecture could be adduced, to authorize the senate to appoint an officer or make a treaty, without the consent or knowledge of the president. The practice had been for the president to propose equally the one and the other, and the senate were at liberty to reject or conform on their responsibility: That he had not been able to find a record of any civil officer of this state, being appointed in the absence of the governor, and he had examined for several years after the adoption of the constitution: Tradition was certainly against such a practice, and for the council to transact business at all, without the governor, unless he was absent from the seat of government, would be found on investigation a novel abuse: He had made these observations on the practice, although he never could admit the manifest and dangerous doctrine, that that usage could control the express words of the constitution: The governor closed his remarks by adding, that if the legislature should give a different construction to the constitution, to that which he had maintained (and by an act to be confirmed at their next session they had a right to declare what the constitution should be) he was then ready to resign his authority into those hands, from whom he received it, as he could neither act against his conscience, nor would he act against their opinion; but if they should rise without declaring their opinion, he would continue to discharge his duties whilst in office, according to his solemn impressions of the meaning of that instrument; he had so sacredly pledged himself to support. Had the resolution which passed the senate (although it wandered from the line of conduct prescribed by the constitution) received the sanction of the house of delegates, a letter was prepared to be delivered, limiting the period of the official duties of the present governor, but from that resolution the house of representatives dissented.

A Civil Officer of Maryland.

In the House of Delegates, January 11, 1863.

On the second reading of the resolutions relative to the governor and council, the question was put, that the house assent to the following: "And resolved, that it is the opinion of the legislature, that the practice that has long since prevailed, of indiscriminately nominating persons for appointments by the governor as well as by the council or any member thereof, is the safest and perhaps the best construction, that we can put upon the constitution, and that the person, obtaining a majority of the council that constitutes a quorum, is constitutionally elected."

The yeas and nays being required appeared as follows:

"Being present this morning at the intendancy's office, when the original of the following royal order was transcribed, I seized the opportunity of procuring a copy, and have translated it in a hurry, under the hope that it will be acceptable to you.

"The minister of war has communicated to me the following—"In a letter of the 15th inst. Don Pedro Cevallos, informs me as follows: Whereas his majesty has ceded to the French republic the colony or province of Louisiana in all its present extent and AS IT WAS HELD BY THE FRENCH WHEN CEDED TO HIS MAJESTY, I advise you thereof, by his royal order, that you make the necessary arrangements for the delivery of it to the French commissioner or commissioners, who being duly authorized by the government, may present themselves for the purpose. Which royal determination I have made known to the captain-general of Louisiana, informing him at the same time that it is his majesty's pleasure with respect to the regiment of the place and the military that garrison the province, that individuals, who voluntarily wish to remain under his majesty's dominion, shall after delivering up the colony, proceed to the Havana, where other posts will be allotted them. Of this I advise you by royal order, that you may comply with that part of his royal determination which relates to you.

God preserve you many years.

And be it enacted, That the several sheriffs and clerks of the several counties shall make payment of all monies due to the state, and received by them, or which may hereafter be received by them, for fines, penalties, forfeitures and amerciaments, and forfeited recognizances, and for ordinary, retailers and marriage licences, within the time limited by law, and, if necessary, the governor and council may direct suits to be brought against any defaulting sheriff or clerk for recovery of the same, and may credit any money that the party is not chargeable with by law.

And be it enacted, That whenever there shall be occasion to expose to public sale any confiscated British property that remains unsold, or the property of any debtor to the state, or his securities, by virtue of any execution already issued, or to be issued for this purpose, the governor and council shall be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to appoint a fit and proper person to act in this behalf on the part of the state, who is hereby directed and required, before he proceeds to act, to give bond, with sufficient security, to the state, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties required of him; and such sales shall be made upon such public notice, and upon such terms, as the governor and council shall direct; and such person, so appointed as aforesaid to act for and in behalf of the state, in case the sale shall be directed to be made on a credit, which shall in no case exceed two years, take bond to the state, with good and sufficient security, to be approved of by the treasurers of the respective shores, from the purchasers; and all bonds taken by any person appointed as aforesaid shall be deposited, with an accurate list thereof subscribed by him, in the treasury of the western shore, and shall be a lien upon the real property of such purchasers, and their securities, from the respective dates, or so much thereof as shall be mentioned in a schedule thereto annexed, and the said treasurer shall make report of all such bonds to the next general assembly thereafter; provided nevertheless, that the said person, so appointed as aforesaid, shall, and he is hereby directed, at the time of any sale of any confiscated property in virtue of this act, to make known that he only sells the right of this state thereto, and that the state doth not guaranty the title to the same, or any part thereof, but the purchase must be in all respects at the risk of the purchaser.

And be it enacted, That in all cases in chancery where no compromise is effected, the governor and council shall be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to direct the attorney-general to prosecute and defend the same to immediate final decision, and, in cases of difficulty, to direct aid to the attorney-general, by employing any person to attend to surveys where necessary, or otherwise to assist in the prosecution or defence of said suits, to be paid out of the contingent fund of five hundred pounds.

And be it enacted, That if any bond debtor to the state for confiscated property, or otherwise, shall neglect to make payment agreeably to the condition of his bond, and sundry resolves of the general assembly, the governor and council may direct process to issue for the whole principal and interest then due, or may proceed on any execution against any state debtor already issued, and served and suspended, as occasion may require, or may direct any execution to be delayed as long as they may think expedient and necessary; and no process shall issue against any of the public debtors unless by the direction of the governor and council; and all sales of property taken by fieri facias at the suit of the state, may be suspended by the governor and council from time to time, as they may think most to the advantage of the state, and may direct executions against the body of any state debtor to be entered "not called by court."

Whereas many persons have made discoveries of British property, confiscated property, or property liable to confiscation, to the governor and council, the late intendant, and late agents of the state, and have made application to purchase the same upon the terms held out by law to the discoverers: And whereas there is no person invested with authority to estimate the value, or fix a reasonable price for the said property, and to compound with the person or persons making such discovery, or with the person or persons applying to purchase the same, Be it enacted, That the governor and council be and they are hereby empowered to compound with all persons who have heretofore made discovery of British property, confiscated property, or property liable to confiscation, either to the governor and council, the late intendant, or any of the state agents, and to allow not exceeding one third of the value of such property to any person or persons having made such discovery, and who shall make application to the governor and council on or before the first day of May next, to compound for and purchase the same, and the said governor and council are hereby authorized to dispose of such property to such applicants, and take bonds with good and sufficient security, to be approved of by the treasurer of the western shore, for the purchase money, bearing interest, payable to the state at the periods that may be agreed on.

And be it enacted, That if such discoverers shall not make known to the governor and council the title of the state to the property, aforesaid, on or before the first day of May next, or shall refuse or neglect, on or before that day, to agree for the purchase of the same, that then the governor and council shall be and they are hereby authorized to sell and dispose of the state's right to the said property to any person or persons applying to purchase the same, or may appoint a fit and proper person as aforesaid, who shall give bond as aforesaid, to sell the same at public sale in the manner as herein before directed, without making such discoverers, who refuse or neglect as aforesaid, any compensation.

And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons purchasing as aforesaid any confiscated British property under the authority of this act, to prosecute any suit or suits, either in law or equity, in the name of the state, for recovery of said property for their use; provided that the said state shall not be liable to pay any costs incurred in prosecution of said suits, but that the same shall be paid by the person or persons for whose use said suits shall be prosecuted; and provided also, that in all such sales, so to be made by the governor and council, or under their direction and appointment, it shall be made known, and it shall be a condition thereof, that they only sell the right of the state thereto, and that the state doth not guaranty the title to the same, or any part thereof, but that the purchase must be in all respects at the risk of the purchaser.

And be it enacted, That on all sales to be made by the governor and council, and under their direction and appointment, of confiscated property, in pursuance of this act, deeds shall be executed by the chancellor to the purchaser or purchasers, in the same manner as for other confiscated property heretofore disposed of.

And be it enacted, That in all cases where bonds shall be taken in virtue of this act, such bonds shall be a lien on the real property of the obligors from the date thereof, or on so much of the said real property as the governor and council shall think sufficient, to be particularly mentioned in a schedule to be annexed to the said bond, in which case it shall be a lien on the property contained in such schedule, and no more, such bond and schedule to be lodged with the treasurer of the western shore, and all such bonds shall express the county in which the obligors respectively reside; and the treasurer of the respective shores shall, within one month after they receive them respectively, cause them, with the schedules annexed to them, to be recorded in the office of the clerks of the western and eastern shores respectively, at the expense of the obligors, and a copy of said record, certified under the hand and official seal of the clerk in whose office the same record shall have been made, shall be as good evidence in any court of law or equity in this state as the original bond would be if it was produced.

And be it enacted, That the governor and council be and they are hereby requested to make communications to the next general assembly of the several proceedings under this act.

And be it enacted, That the governor and council be and they are hereby authorized to allow to any person whom they shall think proper to appoint to sell any real property directed to be sold in virtue of this act, a sum not exceeding three per centum on the amount of any sale.

NOTICE is hereby given, that unless the county tax, proportion of advertising, and other legal charges due on the lands aforesaid, shall be paid to William M'Mahon, Esquire, collector of Allegany county, on or before the third Monday in June next, the lands so charged as aforesaid, or such part thereof as may be necessary to raise the sum due thereon, shall be sold to the highest bidder, for the payment of the same.

By order of the Commissioners of the Tax for Allegany county,

AQUILA A. BROWN, CLK.

December, 1802.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscriber intends petitioning the next Frederick county February court for a commission to mark and bound, as well the whole as his particular parts of the following tracts of land, lying in the county aforesaid, to wit: a tract called HOBSON'S CHOICE, a tract called the RESURVEY on part of HOBSON'S CHOICE, a tract called the ORCHARD, and a tract of land called the RED BUG, agreeably to the act of assembly for marking and bounding lands, and the supplements thereto.

ROGER NELSON.

Frederick county, November 1, 1802.

COMMITTED to my custody as a runaway, a mulatto man named NED, about 24 or 25 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high, very bare of cheeks, has very bad hair, and has one of his hands burnt by falling in the fire; this fellow says he belongs to JOHN WATKIN, living in Montgomery county, and was with his master at my house about the first of September last. His master is desirous to take him away, or he will be sold for his prison fees, and other charges.

THOMAS PRICE, Sheriff of Charles county.

October 13, 1802.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN away the Wednesday after Whit Sunday last, a negro boy named HEZ, about nineteen years of age, five feet high, he is a black fellow, and stammers when spoken to, he is an artful villain, and on the left or right shoulder is a mark by a burn when a child; had on when he went away, a long blue coat, a pair of corduroy pantaloons, an offshooting shirt. I suppose he is harboured by his father who belongs to Walter Clagett, in Anne Arundel county, near Queen Anne. Whoever takes up said fellow, and secures him in any goal, so that I may get him again, shall receive the above reward, paid by

BENJ. DUVAL, of ELISHA.

N. B. I forewarn all persons from harbouring said fellow on their peril.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I TAKE this mode of informing those who may have property for sale, that I will act as auctioneer, on application. My experience and ability in that line may be known on inquiry.

Annapolis, August 17, 1802.

C. MILLS.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN away, under the pretence of freedom, a negro woman by the name of ALICE, a very dark brown woman, has tolerable long hair, aged twenty-five years, five feet five or six inches high, and has good proportion to her height; she took her child with her which she called AUSTIN, or JACOB, and in his absence has taken the name of MURRAY JOICE, and it is not unlikely but that she has changed her name again; it is supposed she is harboured about Mr. Charles Carroll's quarter, as she has many kindred there, and has been frequently seen in the neighbourhood of Annapolis; all the quarters neighbouring to town may be suspected, as she has been away a considerable time, and has had the opportunity of getting acquainted with almost every such place. Whoever takes up said woman, with or without the child, and secures her so that the owner gets her again, shall be entitled to the above reward, paid by

JAMES SANDERS.

TO BE SOLD.

THE subscriber will SELL, on very accommodating terms, from one to sixteen hundred acres of LAND, situate in the upper part of Anne Arundel county, contiguous to Ellicott's new road, and a convenient distance from the city of Baltimore. The land lays tolerably compact, has a large proportion of rich meadow ground, the soil well adapted to the cultivation of small grain, corn, and tobacco, and is susceptible of great improvement by a judicious use of plaster of Paris, which would render it very productive. The neighbourhood of this property is pleasant and agreeable, and the situation in regard to health equal to any in the state of Maryland.

Persons wishing to purchase farms in an eligible part of the country, and with a small sum of money, are invited to embrace the present opportunity, if neglected, regret may in vain hope for another occasion so favourable for attaining these objects. Title, with a general warranty, will be given.

W. ALEXANDER.

Annapolis, November 11, 1802.

FOR SALE.

On a credit, if required.

ALIKELY, healthy, young negro woman, accustomed to house work, with a female child, inquire of the printer.

Runaway Slaves

COMMITTED to the goal of Prince George's county, on the third instant, the two following negroes; EMANUEL, about forty years of age, a black fellow, five feet five or six inches high, says he is a blacksmith by trade, and that he belongs to MARIA LUNSFORD, living in Northumberland county, Virginia; his cloathing a blue cloth great coat, blue cloth close coat, a red cloth waistcoat, corduroy breeches, yarn stockings, an old felt and shoes.

MOSES, a yellow complexion, appears to be about twenty-two years of age, has a scar on his left cheek, about five feet five or six inches high, says he belongs to WILLIAM SIMONS, of Lancaster county, Virginia; his cloathing a green cloth coat, serdown waistcoat, blue cloth breeches, yarn stockings, felt hat, and coarse half boots. The owners of the said negroes are requested to release them from goal, or they will be sold as the law directs.

THOMAS MACGILL, Sheriff of Prince-George's county.

December 31, 1802.

Forty Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber's plantation, on the head of South river, in October last, a negro man named PARROWAY, he is a likely young black fellow, of a middle size, he went off in his common working dress, but it is probable has changed them; he was purchased from Mr. Jacob Waters, on the head of South river, where I expect he is harboured by his negroes, and at Mrs. Waters's, over Severn, where his mother lives. Whoever will take up this above negro, and secure him in Annapolis or Baltimore goal, shall be entitled to the above reward, paid by

THOMAS SNOWDEN.

January 10, 1803.

IF any gentlemen of the bar wish to see the plaintiff, conditions, and judge Tuckers preface to the American edition of Blackstone, they may be accommodated with them at this office.

THIS is to give notice, that the subscriber, of Anne Arundel county, in the state of Maryland, hath obtained from the orphans court of Anne Arundel county, in Maryland, letters testamentary on the personal estate of HENRY HALL, late of Anne Arundel county, deceased.
